Thousands of Kenyans expected to March for Wildlife on April 13, 2019

Wednesday, April 10, 2019: Over 4,000 people from all walks of life are expected to join the government and conservation partners to champion the protection of wildlife in what promises to be the biggest Global March for Elephants, Rhinos, Lions and other endangered species yet. Global March is an annual worldwide event that takes place in more than 130 countries - including Kenya - which hosted the largest march in the world in 2017.

In Nairobi, WildlifeDirect, Stand Up Shout Out (SUSO) and Kenya Wildlife Service (KWS), have partnered with more than 20 conservation partners to organize this year’s Nairobi edition. The theme for the 2019 march is No Market No Trade, advocating for the closure of both domestic and international markets, and the ban on all trade whether legal or illegal in lion bones, pangolin scales, elephant ivory, rhino horn and trophy imports.

The 2018 Nairobi Global March for Elephants, Rhinos and Lions was postponed in order to highlight this year's Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora (CITES) CoP18, to be held in Colombo, Sri Lanka, from May 23 to June 3. This is an international agreement between governments, which aims to ensure that international trade in specimens of wild animals and plants does not threaten their survival.

“We urge all Parties to adopt the recommended revisions to Resolution Conf. 9.14 (Rev. CoP17) on conservation of and trade in African and Asian rhinoceroses and Resolution Conf 10.10 (Rev CoP17) on conservation of and trade in elephant specimens submitted by Kenya to strengthen efforts to ban international trade in rhinoceros horns and elephant ivory, respectively. The revisions to the two Resolutions would inter alia (1) urge Parties to close all domestic markets for raw and worked rhinoceros horn and elephant ivory or other rhinoceros and elephant parts and derivatives as a matter of urgency; and (2) urge Parties to consider the destruction of stockpiles of rhinoceros horns and elephant ivory as a management option. The proposed Decisions would require Parties to report on their implementation of the Resolutions to determine the resultant impacts on reducing rhinoceros and elephant poaching and illegal trade in their products.”

The demand for elephant ivory, rhino horn, pangolin scales and other wildlife products in the Asian market continues to be a growing concern and threat to the existence of wildlife. The march calls upon governments, the civil society, grassroots communities and all stakeholders to be proactive and collaborative in order to ensure the survival of elephants, rhinos and other endangered species.

The march will take place in Nairobi on Saturday, 13th April 2019 starting at the National Museums of Kenya and ending at Kenya Wildlife Service headquarters and is open to the public. All are welcome.

For more information, please contact:
Trish Sewe - WildlifeDirect
+254 (0) 705 515 709

Paul Gathitu - Kenya Wildlife Service
+254 (0) 723 333 313

About Global March for Elephants and Rhinos (www.march4elephantsandrhinos.org)

The Global March for Elephants and Rhinos (GMFER) is a worldwide call to action to condemn the poaching of wildlife and the trafficking of wildlife trophies. This global movement calls upon governments, the civil society, grassroots communities and all stakeholders to be proactive and collaborative in order to ensure the survival of elephants and rhinos. GMFER-Nairobi edition was first held in Kenya in 2014 by WildlifeDirect and SUSO. Over time, the March has also shone light on other endangered species, including lions and now pangolins as well as other species being proposed for listings in CITES Appendices I & II.